

About the Authors

Colleen M. Galambos, PhD, ACSW, LCSW, LCSW-C, FGSA, is the Helen Bader endowed chair in gerontology at the University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee. An NASW Pioneer, she has over 30 years of experience in quality improvement, aging in place, gerontological practice, and working to improve health and long-term care systems of delivery. She has held many local, state, and national leadership positions, such as with the John A. Hartford Faculty Development Institute Project and the Council on Social Work Education, and was a member of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organization’s Professional and Technical Advisory Committee on Long-Term Care. She has extensive experience developing services and practice models for older adults, advocating for policies and programs that enhance the well-being of older adults, and teaching and conducting research. A fellow of the Gerontological Society of America, she has published extensively, including several books, journal articles, and book chapters.

Roberta R. Greene, PhD, LCSW, professor emerita, was the Louis and Ann Wolens Centennial Chair in Gerontology and Social Welfare at the University of Texas at Austin. She has a wide range of practice experience, including clinical practice, policy, administrative, and research expertise. She is an NASW Pioneer, known for her advocacy work on nursing home reform. She was the 2015 recipient of the Knee/Whitman Outstanding Achievement Award, which recognizes those who have made a significant impact on national health, public policy, or professional standards. A fellow of the Gerontological Society of America, she has conducted significant research on resilience among Holocaust survivors. A prolific author, she has written numerous books, including A Handbook of Human Behavior in the Social Environment (Aldine Transaction Press, 2017), Social Work with the Aged and Their Families (Transaction Press, 2016), Caregiving and Care Sharing: A Life Course Perspective (NASW Press, 2014), and Resiliency Theory: An Integrated Framework for Practice, Research, and Policy (NASW Press, 2012).

Nancy P. Kropf, PhD, is dean and professor at the Byrdine F. Lewis School of Nursing and Health Professions, Georgia State University. A former John A. Hartford Foundation scholar, she has authored and coauthored numerous publications and books, including Evidence-Based Treatment with Older Adults (Oxford University Press, 2017), Caregiving and Care Sharing: A Life Course Perspective (NASW Press, 2014), and Competence: Theoretical Frameworks (Transaction Press, 2011). A national authority on caregiving, she served on the National Advisory Board to the Rosalynn Carter Institute on Caregiving. She is a fellow of the Gerontological Society of America and served as the association's treasurer in 2009.

Harriet L. Cohen, PhD, MSW, is associate professor emerita in the Department of Social Work, Texas Christian University. A former John A. Hartford Foundation scholar, her social work practice experience spans over 35 years in a variety of nonprofit organizations to build community and organizational capacity to serve older adults and their families. Her research and publication interests include forgiveness and older Holocaust survivors, spirituality in midlife, and older adults and older lesbian and gay men issues.
